

FinTech and Blockchain

Changes introduced by the America Invents Act, in particular the covered business method patent review, and the Supreme Court's decision in Alice Corp. Pty. Ltd. v. CLS Bank Int'l, have had a strong impact on commerce technology patents. In addition, the tremendous growth of technological innovation in the field of blockchains and cryptocurrency have placed importance on understanding the law in the context of these technologies and how best to protect inventions within this realm.

Haley Guiliano is at the forefront of the intersection of FinTech and blockchain related technology with ever-changing patent laws, rules and regulations. The Haley Guiliano team includes lawyers and other patent professionals having a deep technical understanding of blockchain technology and FinTech. We regularly advise clients on how to protect their ideas in these areas in the U.S., Europe, and elsewhere.
