

Patents

Patents typically form the most important component of an intellectual property portfolio for companies who make it their business to innovate.

Haley Guiliano's patent professionals are able to speak the language of engineers and scientists. This allows us to fully understand our clients' innovations and products, which is a fundamental requirement in order to draft and prosecute high quality patents.

Our team's experience in patent law-related matters goes back 40 years, having been deeply involved with some of the most important and seminal matters in the field during this time.
